

I object to allowing cell phone use on airplanes. I find the thought as objectional as allowing smoking on the planes. Surely, people should be able to do without being "connected" for the amount of time a plane trip takes. And to expose other passengers to private conversations, usually loudly, is a terrible invasion of everyone's privacy.